For questions about outdoor warning sirens, contact Tonya Hunter, Emergency Management Coordinator, at 972-237-7595 or thunter@gptx.org. KIRBY CREEK GARDEN - VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Volunteers at the city of Grand Prairie's Kirby Creek Nature Center are harvesting this summer's crop from the organic vegetable garden. Nature's bounty in all her vibrant colors is making an appearance in the form of zucchinis, tomatoes, sweet peppers, potatoes, squash and eggplant.

No experience is needed to volunteer, except the capacity to weed, till and amend the soil with compost, plant seeds, mulch and weed some more before harvest! Most volunteers typically include those who have completed 14 hours of Master Composter training over one weekend day and two evenings. An additional 40 hours of volunteering in the garden and other opportunities in the city, provides a path to certification as a city of Grand Prairie certified Master Composter. Master Composters receive instructional materials, and a Shepherd's bin (valued at $25), to encourage backyard composting that can be shared with friends and neighbors.

For more information about signing up for the next Master Composter class (Oct. 7-9, 2010), volunteering at Kirby Creek or caring for your lawn and yard, please contact Vijit Singh at vsingh@gptx.org or call Vijit at 972-237-8061.
