WHY DOES THE WATER TASTE DIFFERENT?

1. As the seasons change, water supplies undergo natural processes that impact the taste and odor of drinking water. These changes, while some times a nuisance, do not indicate unsafe drinking water. Grand Prairie water is tested daily to ensure that it meets all state and federal regulations, which are based on human health research. If these standards are not met, we are required to notify you.
2. The seasons that typically have the greatest impact on the taste and odor of our drinking water are spring and summer. Heavy spring rainfall, higher temperatures and more sunlight accelerate the growth of algae in the water. Algae are microscopic plants, that grow in rivers and lakes.
3. In the spring, heavy rains bring organic matter (sediment) into the watershed, sometimes leading to “earthy” or “musty” tastes. This matter acts as a “fertilizer” to the algae, encouraging its growth, especially during long periods of sunlight.
4. Most episodes of taste and odor cannot be removed by conventional treatment processes. The algae “bloom” must run its course before the taste and odor subside.
5. In the summer, the city supplements its purchase of surface water with water wells. The mix of these different supplies is noticeable to those who have become used to surface supplies during the course of the year. Our ground water meets the same standards as our surface water, but tastes different.
6. Ground water naturally contains a high dissolved mineral content, which will give it a more distinct taste. The presence of natural minerals gives water much of its taste. Water without minerals (distilled) tastes flat.
7. Sometimes people detect the odor of chlorine in their water. This is a disinfectant used to ensure the biological integrity of the water and is mandated for use by the federal government. Usually the odor will be most apparent after first turning on the water. After a few minutes, the odor usually fades. Before the use of chlorine, waterborne diseases were a major problem. Its use has virtually eliminated diseases such as typhoid, cholera and dysentery.
8. “Milky” water is often caused by the presence of tiny air bubbles. To confirm this, pour some water in a glass. If the water starts to clean immediately from the bottom up, the cause was entrapped air bubbles.
9. Cooling water in your refrigerator in an open container will improve the taste and odor of your water.
10. Speakers on water conservation are available to talk to civic groups, community and charitable organizations. For more information, call 972-237-8377 or e-mail sjackson@gptx.org.

PRIORITY RESPONSE FOR VIDEO ALARMS

Grand Prairie Police will continue to respond to all traditional burglar alarms; however, video alarms will now receive priority response from officers. Video alarm technology can confirm an actual burglary in progress resulting in much a much higher arrest rate. The vast majority of traditional alarm calls are false alarms with low arrest rates. Video alarms are helping reduce property losses and bringing insurance rates down for a better community. Visit grandprairiepolice.org for more information.

HOUSEHOLD HAZ WASTE COLLECTION

If you haven't already done so, consider replacing your incandescent light bulbs with compact fluorescent lights (CFLs). CFLs last much longer and are more energy efficient, saving you money on your electric bill. The downside to CFLs is that they contain small amounts of mercury which can contaminate groundwater if not properly disposed.

Proper disposal of CFLs (and other mercury-containing devices) is essential. Most major home improvement stores, including both Grand Prairie Home Depot stores, accept used fluorescent bulbs. You can also take CFLs and other mercury-containing equipment to any of our Household Hazardous Waste collection events. The next event will be Saturday, Sept. 8, 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Development Center, 206 W. Church St. Registration is required. You may register online at www.gptx.org/WQ/HWW or by calling 972-237-8055.

In addition to CFLs, residents can bring household and automotive batteries, pharmaceuticals, motor oil, cooking oil, paint, aerosol cans, medications, and household, landscape, and pool chemicals to the HHW Collection Day. Items not accepted include explosives, gas cylinders, fireworks, medical waste, radioactive materials, and municipal trash. No commercial waste is accepted.

YOUTH VOLLEYBALL LEAGUE

Register now until Sept. 14 for the Youth Volleyball League at

Bowles Life Center, 2750 Graham St. The season begins on Saturday, Oct. 6 and all games will be played at the Bowles Life Center. Fee is $50 per player and includes jersey. For more information, call 972-237-7533.
